Content Focus

World-renowned for research that commands influence and respect while serving science and society, the 12 American Heart Association/American Stroke Association (AHA/ASA) Journals continue to advance the rate of innovation in their respective fields and the application of the latest science into clinical practice.

They are the publications clinicians, researchers, and academics turn to first for the most significant and timely advances across the full spectrum of cardiovascular and cerebrovascular disease, including: arrhythmia, atrial fibrillation, cardiac arrest, cardiac rehab, cardiomyopathy, cardiovascular conditions of childhood, cholesterol, congenital heart defects, diabetes, heart attack, heart failure, heart valve problems and disease, high blood pressure, metabolic syndrome, pericarditis, peripheral artery disease (PAD), and stroke.
